Building an Online Classroom Community

With so much uncertainty as the new school year starts, it's imperative to focus on what's important—the difference educators make in the lives of their students.

Our September Start-up Series will support your goals for designing an engaging, inclusive classroom community. We will also address how to maintain equity and access in online environments.

Attendees will create classroom activities, workshop new tools, and connect with colleagues in content-specific breakout rooms including STEM, K-2 education, special education, and literacy.
